This training is designed to teach Participants the “next step” of the Motivational Interviewing Model. Basically, the next step is about digging deeper into the theoretical concepts of Motivational Interviewing (based on the Trans Theoretical Model of the Stages of Change). Understanding that MI is a specific clinical method, it is then important that the next step is to practice the Four Fundamental Processes that is MI. In order to be competent in these four processes it is helpful to practice with other professionals and be open to professional guidance and criticism. Participants will hopefully improve their skills especially in the area of “engaging” and “focus” by role-playing and accepting feedback from the Instructor and other participants. It is not a requirement, although it is helpful if participants have attended MI Training in the past.
